

I urge you NOT to change the law that limits ownership. Our liberties have never been so endangered by corporate ownership of the media, and NPR and the shows it carries represent the broadest range of information and opinions available. That has already been lost in network television "news," which has become a mouthpiece for this administration. Our democracy requires an educated, informed public with access to as wide a range of information as possible. I count on you to be the voice of freedom, democracy, civil liberties, and true American values:
DO NOT change the laws that limit access. Sharon Bryan
